ANGELS HISTORY

Seeking radio rights for his Golden West Broadcasting firm, Gene Autry headed for the American League expansion meeting in St. Louis on December 6, 1960 and returned as Chairman of the Board of the Los Angeles Angels.

During the ensuing 17 years, the Angels have played in three "home parks," have enjoyed moderate success at the gate, have produced numerous highlights on the field but have yet to earn much success in the standings.

Four general managers have guided the fortunes of the team—Fred Haney, appointed Dec. 8, 1960; Dick Walsh, hired Sept. 23, 1968; Harry Dalton, designated Exec. V.P. & G.M. on Oct. 27, 1971; and E. J. "Buzzie" Bavasi, named Executive Vice-President, Oct. 24, 1977.

Bill Rigney, Harold "Lefty" Phillips, Del Rice, Bobby Winkles, Dick Williams, Norm Sherry and Dave Garcia have taken turns piloting the Angels.

Los Angeles played its first game at Wrigley Field, April 27, 1961; made its debut at Dodger Stadium on April 17, 1962; and became known as the California Angels after moving to Anaheim and opening the Big-A on April 9, 1966 (an exhibition game). First A.L. game played at the Big-A was April 19, 1966.

Heroes have been plentiful. Colorful southpaw Bo Belinsky tossed the first Angel no-hitter, defeating Baltimore, May 5, 1962; outfielders Albie Pearson and Leon Wagner and righthander Ken McBride were in the starting line-up for the A.L. All-Stars in '63; shortstop Jim Fregosi appeared in a half-dozen mid-summer classics; Dean Chance was the A.L. Cy Young Award winner in '64; Alex Johnson won a batting title, hitting .329 in 1970; Mickey Rivers set a stolen base record with 70 in '75; Bobby Bonds tied Wagner's club home run mark with 37 last year; Nolan Ryan has established major league records in almost every strikeout category including most in a season (383 in 1973) and tossed four no-hitters; and Frank Tanana earned the A.L. earned run average crown last year.

Fan support reached record proportions last year when 2,777,660 watched the Angels—1,432,633 at home and 1,345,027 on the road.

In an all-out effort to bring a pennant to Orange County, Autry entered the free agent market full force the last two years signing six players—Joe Rudi, Bobby Grich, Don Baylor, Lyman Bostock, Rick Miller and Tom Griffin.

"The 1978 team is the best ball club that has ever represented the California Angels," summarized manager Garcia.

The Manager . . .

DAVID GARCIA

AGE: 57, turns 58 on Sept. 18
BORN: 9-18-20 in East St. Louis, IL
RESIDES: El Cajon, CA
HT.: 6-0 WT.: 180
BATTED & THREW: Right
MARRIED: Carmen Mary Menendez, 9-4-43
CHILDREN: Marilyn, Cathleen, David
APPOINTED: 7-11-77

By his own words, he's an eternal optimist, but Angels' Manager DAVE GARCIA is also highly competent and solid in his moves.

Earning his first major league opportunity at age 50 as a coach with San Diego, Garcia was officially appointed the seventh manager of the Angels last July 11.

"Basically my strategy isn't any different than most managers," explained Garcia. "I don't have a lot of theories or innovations that have never been tried before. But I do know something about this game and the way it should be played."

Indeed, Garcia's background includes 15 seasons as a minor league infielder, 14 years as a minor league manager, nine years as a scout and more than six campaigns as a major league coach.

He has a knack for being able to motivate players and has earned their respect.

"He can be hard if he has to, he's understanding and he can make everyone happy on the team. That's the most anyone can do," offered ex-Angel Jerry Remy.

This is the second time around with the Angels for Garcia. He piloted California's El Paso entry to the Texas League pennant in 1974.

"My philosophy is rather simple," Garcia confessed. "I'm quiet by nature, but I can become very vocal when the occasion presents itself."

"I've always been honest with players. I'm very frank and I let them know where they stand."

"If they think they need an explanation, I'll give it to them. They may not like what they're going to hear, but they're going to hear something."

As a coach Garcia spent four years with the Padres (1970-73) and two with Cleveland (1975-76) before rejoining the Angels as a third base coach at the start of last season.

"I played with people like Wes Westrum and Clint Hartung in the Giants' organization. I managed Orlando Cepeda and Hoyt Wilhelm among others," added Garcia. "The best player I ever managed was Bill White (now a broadcaster for the New York Yankees) who played for me at Sioux City in 1954."

"Maybe the best player I ever signed as a scout was Minnie Rojas, who pitched for the Angels."

Utilizing his vast experience, Garcia attempts to evaluate things with a long range approach as opposed to seeking immediate, if only temporary, results.

"I live the type of life where I'll never do anything to hurt anybody. I enjoy helping people but at the same time, I consider myself a disciplinarian," Garcia continued.

"I've had other opportunities to manage in the big leagues but I wouldn't take just any job. My prime consideration in accepting the Angel Job was my family. I want to stay close to my home in El Cajon (CA). To me, this is the No. 1 job in baseball and it's the best major league club I've ever been associated with," concluded Garcia.

Starting his 33rd year in baseball, BOB CLEAR will serve the Angel's board of strategy as the first base coach this season.

Clear joined California's coaching staff in July, 1976, after scouting for the Angels from 1969-75.

During his scouting tenure he recommended 10 players currently on the Angel's roster.

Originally an infielder, Clear switched to pitching in 1946. He recorded three 20-or-more victory seasons during his minor league career.

As a minor league manager Clear's clubs won pennants at Douglas (Arizona-Mexican League) and at Idaho Falls (Pioneer League).

Prior to joining the Angels, Clear was affiliated with the Cleveland, St. Louis and Pittsburgh organizations.

24 MARVIN EDWARD GRISSOM

AGE: 59, turns 60 on March 31

BORN: 3-31-18 in Los Molinos, CA

RESIDES: Red Bluff, CA

HT.: 6-3 WT.: 230

BATTED & THREW: Right

MARRIED: Frances Virginia Moller, 8-8-42

APPOINTED: 7-13-77

When MARV GRISSOM become pitching coach for the Angels last July, it marked the third time he has served the Angels in the same capacity.

Grissom was a member of the original Angels under Manager Bill Rigney from 1961 through 1966 and rejoined the club in 1969.

During 12-plus years as a major league coach he also had tutored pitchers for the Chicago White Sox, Minnesota Twins and the Chicago Cubs.

Grissom's major league career spanned nine seasons with Detroit, the White Sox, Boston, the New York and San Francisco Giants and St. Louis. He compiled a 47-45 lifetime record with a 3.42 ERA.

He was the winning pitcher in the first game of the 1954 World Series as the Giants defeated Cleveland, 5-2, in 10 innings. Grissom also pitched for the National League in the '54 All-Star Game.

Grissom established a N.L. record for pitchers with 219 consecutive errorless games, August 28, 1954 through June 11, 1959.

JOHN FRANCIS MC NAMARA

AGE: 45, turns 46 on June 4
BORN: 6-4-32 in Sacramento, CA
RESIDES: Sacramento, CA

BATTED & THREW: Right
MARRIED: Kathleen Fordon, 10-1-55
CHILDREN: Peggy, Mike, Maureen, Susan
APPOINTED: 10-17-77

A newcomer to Manager Dave Garcia's coaching staff is third base coach JOHN MC NAMARA.

The former manager of the Oakland A's and San Diego Padres, McNamara's expertise covers a period of 26 years. A catcher throughout his career, excluding 14 games (spread over four years) as a pitcher, McNamara served nine years as a minor league pilot before entering the major league level as a coach for the A's in 1968.

He replaced Hank Bauer as skipper of the A's during the final week of the 1969 season and piloted the team to a second place finish (89-73) the following year.

McNamara coached for the San Francisco Giants from 1971-73 before being named manager of San Diego in '74.

He remained with the Padres until May 30 last year when Alvin Dark succeeded him.

JAMES HARRISON REESE

AGE: 72, turns 73 on Oct. 1
BORN: 10-1-05 in New York, NY
RESIDES: Los Angeles, CA
HT.: 6-0 WT.: 170
BATTED: Left THREW: Right
APPOINTED: 3-30-72

The record reads as follows:

Batboy, Los Angeles Angels, 1917-23
 Coach, Los Angeles Angels, 1940-42
 Mgr., Army service team, Camp Campbell, KY, 1942
 Scout, Boston Braves, 1945-46
 Coach, San Diego, 1948-60
 Coach, Hawaii, 1963-64; 1969
 Coach, Seattle, 1965-68
 Coach, Portland, 1970
 Scout, Montreal Expos, 1971-72
 Coach, California Angels, 1973-78

In between, JIMMIE REESE was a fancy fielding second baseman, good enough to spend a couple of years with the New York Yankees and another with the St. Louis Cardinals.

At age 72, Reese remains active as a conditioning coach for the pitchers. Reese is to a fungo bat what Heifetz was to a violin and Tchaikovsky to a piano. He's so accurate hitting fungos that on occasion he has "thrown" batting practice with a fungo bat.

Reese, starting his 61st year in baseball, hit .346 for the 1930 Yankees in a reserve role. He was a former roommate of Babe Ruth during spring training.

"I remember my rookie year," Reese recalled. "I got up there with the bases loaded. We were behind Cleveland 6-3. Bob Shawkey was our manager with the Yankees. He told me to run like hell if I hit the ball on the ground. 'The big guy's up there next so we don't want any double plays.' I hit a grand slam off Wes Ferrell to win the game, 7-6. The Babe was waiting for me at home plate. He slammed me on the back and said, 'Nice hitting, kid. Now you're only 59 behind.' I wasn't no threat. I hit 28 homers in 16 seasons."

AGE: 46

BORN: 10-3-31 in La Jolla, CA

RESIDES: San Diego, CA

HT.: 6-4 WT.: 220

BATTED: Left THREW: Right

MARRIED: Joan Phillips, 2-6-54

CHILDREN: Mark, Craig, Drew, Joel

APPOINTED: 11-28-77

BOB SKINNER, former major league manager and a coach for the last eight years, joins the Angels as a hitting instructor this season.

Named Minor League Manager of the Year by "The Sporting News" after piloting San Diego to the Pacific Coast League pennant in 1967, Skinner replaced Gene Mauch as skipper of Philadelphia in mid-June the following year. He also managed the Phillies in 1969.

Skinner compiled a career .277 batting average during a 12-year span with Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

For the Pirates he hit .305 in 1957, .321 in '58 and .302 with 20 home runs in 1962. He batted .309 for St. Louis in 1965.

The personable Skinner operates a highly successful baseball camp in the San Diego area with former major league pitcher Roger Craig.

The former lefthanded hitting outfielder played in two World Series and three All-Star Games.

His combined World Series average for the 1960 Pirates and '64 Cardinals is .375. In the mid-summer classics, Skinner collected three hits in 10 at bats.

He coached for San Diego from 1970-73, moved to Pittsburgh from 1974-76 and returned to the Padres as a hitting instructor last year.

DONALD WILLIAM AASE

RHP

AGE: 23, turns 24 on Sept. 8

BORN: 9-8-54 in Orange, CA

RESIDES: Anaheim, CA

HT.: 6-3 WT.: 195

BATS & THROWS: Right

ACQUIRED: From Boston Red Sox with undisclosed amount of cash in exchange for Jerry Remy, 12-8-77.

DON AASE is a "favorite son" candidate for stardom with the California Angels. The first Orange County born Angel, Aase also was a charter member of the Junior Angels club.

"I had hoped to be drafted by the Angels in 1972," said the product of Anaheim's Savanna High School. "I always wanted to pitch for the Angels. I didn't expect the trade by Boston, but I couldn't ask for anything better than to be able to play in my hometown."

Aase's first Anaheim Stadium appearance was memorable. In only his second major league start on July 31, he fired a three-hitter to beat the Angels, 1-0.

"I'm looking forward to working here more often. The Big-A is one of the best-kept parks in the league and I like warm weather. It's obviously a bigger park than Fenway but I try to pitch about the same everywhere."

The Red Sox selected Aase on the sixth round of the June, 1972 free agent draft and stuck with him despite an 0-10 professional debut at Williamsport.

"I was happy just to get another contract after that. I didn't even know if they would give me another chance."

Boston's patience was rewarded in 1974 when Aase won Carolina League "Pitcher of the Year" honors after a 17-8 campaign. After overcoming tendinitis problems in his arm in 1975 and 1976, Aase joined the Red Sox in the heat of a pennant race with New York and won his first three starts.

"Aase was something we were looking for in Boston for four years," said manager Don Zimmer. "We were very reluctant to give him up."

Aase gives much of the credit for his development to former Savanna coach Jim Reach, who also tutored lefthander Al Hrabosky of Kansas City. Aase will be teaming with catcher Brian Downing for the first time after following him through Anaheim youth leagues.

WILLIE MAYS AIKENS

AGE: 23

BORN: 10-14-54 in Seneca, SC

RESIDES: Seneca, SC

HT.: 6-2 WT.: 220

ACQUIRED: Angels' No. 1 selection in January, 1975 free agent draft.

A package of power named WILLIE AIKENS could become a vital weapon in the Angels' arsenal in 1978. His bat produced 30 home runs and 117 runs batted in at El Paso in 1976.

Aikens received a brief trial in 1977, playing in 42 games primarily as a pinch or designated hitter, after batting .336 as a regular in Salt Lake City. His biggest major league hit was a pinch two-run double against Texas which enabled the Angels to complete a doubleheader sweep on June 26.

The strength of Aikens went on display July 11 in a pre-game home-run hitting contest between the Angels and Minnesota Twins. Aikens rocketed a half dozen mortar shots deep over the right-center field fence.

Named by the delivering physician after Giants' outfielder Willie Mays when born during the 1954 World Series, Aikens won virtually every award possible in 1976. He was TOPPS Chewing Gum's Texas League Player of the Year; Double-A Player of the Year as selected by the National Sportswriters Association; and the recipient of the Kenny Myers Memorial Award as the outstanding player in the Angels' system.

Aikens attended South Carolina State College and won all NAIA honors. He became eligible for the January, 1975 free agent draft when the school dropped baseball and was the second player in the nation to be selected.

AGE: 21

BORN: 2-23-57 in Los Angeles, CA

RESIDES: Granada Hills, CA

HT.: 6-0 WT.: 170

BATS & THROWS: Right

ACQUIRED: Angels' No. 2 selection in June, 1975 free agent draft.

Three solid seasons in the minor leagues have convinced JIM ANDERSON he is ready for the big step into the majors.

"I think I can play in the big leagues," said Jim, the Texas League all-star shortstop with a .285 batting average. "I have gained a lot of confidence and ability since signing in 1975. I'm young enough to be looking at a 10 to 15-year major league career."

A product of John F. Kennedy High School in Granada Hills, Anderson has added strength with maturity. After hitting only four home runs in his first two minor league seasons, he stroked 18 last year for El Paso.

"The ball carries well in El Paso but I hit about half of them on the road. I'm getting stronger and making better contact."

Anderson batted .316 in the 1977 Arizona Instructional League and worked on playing second base. He skipped winter ball but kept in shape playing racquetball and golf and taking to the ski slopes.

"I've been snow skiing for about eight years. I'm aware of what happened to Jim Lonborg but I don't take any chances. I'm in good physical condition and know my limits."

A dramatic turn of events in Yankee Stadium proved the pivotal point in MIKE BARLOW's 1977 season and might have been the salvation of his career as a relief pitcher.

On Aug. 12 in the second game of a doubleheader, Barlow was battered for six runs and absorbed his second defeat against no victories. His earned run average swelled to 6.66, thanks in part to a pair of mammoth home runs by Reggie Jackson.

But less than 24 hours later, manager Dave Garcia called upon Barlow again to relieve an exhausted Nolan Ryan in the bottom of the 12th inning after the Angels had forged a 6-5 lead. Before a roaring Oldtimers' Day crowd of 43,841, Barlow got the Yankees out to record his first major league save and remove a growing burden from his shoulders.

"It was nice to contribute. When you are the 25th man on the club you are just going along on the road trips unless you can help," said Barlow, who grew up near the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, NY. "It really helped me to have Dave come right back with me and show some confidence."

Buoyed by that performance, Barlow went on to log a 4-0 mark in September with a 1.99 earned run average. He even won a game as a starter, beating Kansas City 4-1 on Oct. 1 with seven innings of two-hit ball.

When California slipped from contention in the West Division pennant race last summer, it didn't take fans long to select a target to vent their emotions.

The unlucky "honoree" was DON BAYLOR.

Signed to a six-year contract which made him a millionaire, Baylor, with fellow free-agent signees Joe Rudi and Bobby Grich, was to supply the impetus to bring Angels fans a pennant winner for the first time in club history.

Unfortunately, Rudi and Grich sustained key injuries which terminated their respective seasons by the end of June. At the time, Baylor, although healthy, was in the process of nursing an anemic batting average.

"I guess you get to the point of pressing a little harder," said Baylor. "Joe Rudi isn't there, Bobby Grich isn't there and you have five guys on the disabled list. You feel as though you've got to do it, or you have let the club down.

"I put too much pressure on myself. I hope to come back this year more prepared to handle it and not let it bother me."

Despite the slow start, Baylor, a keen competitor, finished strong, hitting .281 during the last half of the season.

He set career highs in runs scored (87), doubles (27), tied his home run high of 25 and finished with 75 RBI, one under his all-time best effort in 1975.

Nicknamed "Groove," the same name carried on his license plate, Baylor went on a hitting tear during a 19-game stretch from August 19 to September 8, compiling a .397 average (63-25).

Baylor was the No. 2 draft selection of the Baltimore Orioles in 1967, the same summer the O's made Grich their No. 1 selection.

"Don is just an overall good person," related Grich. "He has a lot of respect for you and in return you show respect for him. He's an intelligent guy.

"If I had to use one word to describe him it would be loyalty. He gives you loyalty."

10 LYMAN WESLEY BOSTOCK, JR.

OF

AGE: 27

BORN: 11-22-50 in Birmingham, AL

RESIDES: Inglewood, CA

HT.: 6-1 WT.: 178

BATS: Left THROWS: Right

MARRIED: Yuovene Brooks, 1-31-74

ACQUIRED: Selected in re-entry draft and signed, 11-21-77.

In the summer of 1972 little note was taken when it came Minnesota's turn to select a player on the 26th round of the free agent draft. Four clubs had already gone home when the Twins announced the name of the 595th player to be taken in the draft — LYMAN BOSTOCK.

Considerably more attention was devoted to Bostock last November when a different type of draft was held — the re-entry draft.

The Angels made Bostock, runner up to Rod Carew in the American League batting derby with a .336 average, their No. 1 pick and ultimately signed the multi-talented left handed hitting outfielder.

"My mind was almost made up to go to New York," Bostock said. "They have the glamour and the lights. But New York wanted me as a player. California wanted me as a player and a person."

Just one day prior to his 27th birthday, Bostock signed a multi-million dollar, multi-year contract with the Angels.

"I hope I can thrill the fans here as much as I did in Minnesota," offered Bostock. "And I'm going to try to keep the people healthy so things won't happen to me like they did to Don Baylor. I don't feel the guys had a fair chance because Bobby Grich and Joe Rudi were hurt early in the season and a lot of pressure fell on Baylor."

In three years with the Twins, Bostock showed improvement each year in EVERY offensive department. His .318 lifetime average clearly illustrates his consistency.

Last year he hit .336 at home and .336 on the road. He hit .331 during the first half and .341 during the second half. He hit .342 vs. righthanders and .324 vs. lefthanders.

"You have to like Lyman Bostock," pointed out Gene Mauch. "He's the second best hitter I've seen in either league (behind Rod Carew). Without doubt, he'll lead the league in hitting soon."

A graduate of Manual Arts High School in Los Angeles, the soft spoken Bostock attended Cal State-Northridge where he and his teammates won the NCAA small college division national championships for two successive seasons.

"Too many people grow up taking from a community and it isn't every day you can go back to that community when you have fame and fortune," admitted Bostock.

As a result, Bostock worked at several clinics last winter helping youngsters in the valley and in southwest Los Angeles.

While Minnesota's Metropolitan Stadium is admittedly a "hitter's park," Bostock actually collected more hits on the road, 101 to 98.

He was extremely effective against the World Champion Yankees (.389) and West Division titlist Kansas City (.346).

The impressive hitting by Bostock isn't too surprising inasmuch as Lyman, Sr., was an outstanding hitting first baseman for many years in the Negro Leagues.

The paths of father and son crossed several years ago in Minnesota during an Old-Timers Game. Lyman, Sr., then 58, hit a line drive single up the middle.

"Somebody asked me, who was better, me or my father?" said Lyman, Jr. "I answered, 'I am.' He said, 'I don't know about that.' We called it a draw."

A remarkable 12-game winning streak last year catapulted lefthander RALPH BOTTING into the Angels' picture as future pitching help.

Botting began the year at Salinas in the California League where he pitched almost perfect baseball. In eight starts he was 8-0 with an earned run average of 2.04 and was selected the TOPPS Player of the Month in May. More importantly, he earned a promotion to El Paso where he reeled off four more quick victories.

"It obviously was my best year in professional ball," said Botting, who finished up 5-7 at El Paso. "I had not been progressing as fast as I thought I would so last season really helped me. I didn't find the competition at Double A that much tougher than at Salinas. I got tired late in the year but did pitch pretty well at times. I had one string of eight no decisions in 12 starts and in one of those I was taken out with an 8-1 lead in the ninth inning."

Botting was the CIF Player of the Year in 1974 for Burbank High School. He found professional competition tougher than expected. "I didn't get guys out as easily as in high school and it took me awhile to adjust mentally. Now I'm just looking forward to impressing people in spring training and at least making the Salt Lake City roster."

Botting skipped winter ball last year but did compile a 3-3 record in the Arizona Instructional League. He worked in construction during January and February.

During eight-and-a-half major league seasons, southpaw KEN BRETT's career has ridden a roller coaster with seven clubs, reaching some spectacular heights and sinking to the depths of serious arm miseries.

Through it all the personable Brett has successfully made the transition from thrower to pitcher with some help along the way.

While a prep at El Segundo High School (CA), Brett's blazing fastball gained him a No. 1 draft selection by the Boston Red Sox in the summer of 1966. He went from Oneonta in the New York-Pennsylvania League to Boston in one year.

At age 19, he became the youngest player ever to pitch in a World Series game as the Bosox battled the St. Louis Cardinals in the October Classic.

Four years later (1971) a sore elbow almost halted his promising career.

"It took me two years to come back," Brett recalled. "That first year ('72) was a learning experience . . . an apprenticeship.

"The Red Sox had traded me to Milwaukee and pitching coach Wes Stock provided me with plenty of encouragement. I was getting tatooed because I didn't know what to do after I lost the fastball. Wes didn't help me so much with the mechanical stuff, but he did help me overcome the mental part."

Traded to Philadelphia in '73, Brett responded with a 13-9 record.

"Ray Rippelmeyer, the Phillies' pitching coach, taught me how to throw a slider and I learned how to keep the ball down," Brett added.

While a member of the Phillies, Brett, an all-around athlete, set a major league record for pitchers by hitting home runs in four consecutive games, June 9-13-18-23.

The following year he was the winning pitcher for the National League in the All-Star Game.

The Hermosa Beach (CA) resident and brother of Kansas City third baseman George Brett joined the Angels from the White Sox last June.

"In Chicago I won games but didn't pitch as well as I did for the Angels where I didn't win as often," proclaimed Brett.

His combined efforts resulted in a career high of 225 innings pitched and also equaled his most victories in a season — 13.

Brett took time off last winter to accompany brother George, lefthander Jerry Reuss and umpire Satch Davidson on a USO tour of Europe on behalf of Major League Baseball.

Control is a by-word for Brett the pitcher.

"I keep the ball down and pitch mostly away from the hitters," confided Brett, "but now I find myself throwing in on the righthanded batters after watching the success of Frank Tanana. Even if I don't have a real good fastball, if I pitch in with good location, it's effective."

The husky form of righthander JOHN CANEIRA will contribute added depth to the Angels' rebuilt pitching staff of 1978. The 6-foot-4, 205-pounder has never had a losing season and he showed late last year that he can pitch effectively in the big leagues.

Caneira made his major league debut Sept. 10 against the Chicago White Sox and responded with seven innings of one-run, five-hit pitching for a 6-1 victory.

"I was as nervous as heck the night before that game," admitted John, an education graduate of Eastern Connecticut State College. "I didn't want to embarrass myself or the team. As the game progressed I felt better and better and I would like to think I can pitch that way all the time."

Caneira also beat Milwaukee Sept. 28 to finish up with a 2-2 record after an 8-4 slate at Salt Lake City. This performance came on the heels of October, 1976 surgery for removal of bone chips and nerve re-routing in his right elbow.

Twice Caneira has led leagues in victories, going 10-1 at Idaho Falls in 1974 and then posting a dazzling 15-4 mark at El Paso in 1976.

Caneira is of Portugese descent and won a gold medal in the 1974 world baseball tournament. He was 28-7 as a collegian.

AGE: 27, turns 28 on Aug. 30

RESIDES: Arlington, TX
HT.: 5-10 WT.: 170

ACQUIRED: Angels' No. 1 selection in June, 1972 free agent draft.

If the Angels were to issue an award for "Comeback Player of the Year" last season it would be a relatively easy task.

Third baseman DAVE CHALK would be an overwhelming choice.

After earning a berth on the American League All-Star team in 1974 and 1975, Chalk did a complete turnabout in '76. His .217 average ranked in the bottom 10 in the league, he failed to hit a home run and totaled only 33 RBI.

"I took too many things for granted," admitted Chalk. "I was coming off a good year (.273 in '75) and I felt that physically and mentally I had it whipped. The result was that I never really got started. I lost my pride."

Faced with a challenge from teammate Ron Jackson for starting honors at third last spring, Chalk rose to the occasion.

A .328 average in April catapulted him into the top 10 hitters' bracket. He continued to hit .300-plus in May and during the final month of play exceeded the same figure.

By season's end Chalk had set career highs for average (.277), games (149), at bats (519), hits (144), doubles (27) and stolen bases (12).

The native Texan (his teammates refer to him as Tex No. 2 — Nolan Ryan is Tex No. 1), who lives a line drive away from the Texas Rangers' stadium at Arlington, is the senior member of the Angels in terms of everyday performers, with four years of service.

An accomplished fielder, Chalk would like nothing better than to earn a Gold Glove Award.

"I'd like to win it to put it on my TV set. I'd enjoy looking at it. It's THE one award I can win," Chalk declared.

A team player in every sense of the word, Chalk willingly volunteered to play shortstop when the Angels were trying to fill a void in 1975-76.

It exemplifies Chalk's attitude on the field.

While he may not be as effervescent as Cincinnati's Pete Rose, nonetheless, the two share a common trait.

"I've never met Rose, but I admire him," said Chalk. "You have to admire a guy who plays the game the only way it should be played — hard."

"I like to think I do the same."

En route to his finest offensive season, Chalk hit .300-or-more against five opponents and enjoyed similar success against lefthanders, compiling a .350 average.

ROBERT CALE CLARK

OF

AGE: 22, turns 23 on June 13
 BORN: 6-13-55 in Sacramento, CA
 RESIDES: Perris, CA
 HT.: 6-0 WT.: 190
 BATS & THROWS: Right
 ACQUIRED: Selected in secondary phase of January, 1975 free agent draft.

The year 1977 made an indelible impression on the life of outfielder BOBBY CLARK. His spiritual outlook changed and brought new turns to his baseball career and off-season occupation.

"I became a born-again Christian on May 25. That day I sat down and prayed and expressed my faith and it changed everything. I always had been what you would call a religious person but that day I confirmed my devotion and it has made a world of difference."

Clark set career highs with 23 home runs and 88 runs batted in at Salinas last year and then enjoyed a productive session in the Arizona Instructional League, batting .347 with 30 RBI in 38 games. He also led AIL outfielders with 89 putouts.

"I was very pleased with my statistics. I think I've improved every facet of my game by playing everyday and gaining more experience. I'm going to camp with the idea of making the team. I want to show management they have players in the system and don't have to go out and buy them."

A graduate of Perris High School, Clark attended the University of California at Riverside before transferring to Riverside City College for two productive baseball seasons. After previous experience in construction, he took a job this past winter as an embalmer in a Perris mortuary.

"It's very interesting work and I may follow it up after my baseball career."

STANLEY GENE CLIBURN

AGE: 21

BORN: 12-19-56 in Jackson, MS

RESIDES: Jackson, MS

HT.: 6-0 WT.: 190

BATS & THROWS: Right

ACQUIRED: Selected in June, 1974 free agent draft.

A year ago STAN CLIBURN was invited to the Angels' major league spring training camp as a laborer — to help catch the myriad of pitchers needing work. In 1978 he's back as a candidate to make the club.

"This is a different situation," said the Jackson, MS native. "I'm coming off my best season ever and have gained a lot of experience. Having gone through camp last year was helpful. I got the butterflies out catching two games against the Padres.

"I feel going to camp last year had a big effect on my season. It carried over and provided extra incentive . . . to work harder and to show the other players more motivation and leadership."

The 21-year-old receiver batted a career high .311 at Salinas in 1977 and made the California League all-star team. He boasted a .305 mark the year before at Quad Cities.

Cliburn led the 1977 Arizona Instructional League catchers in putouts. "I went there to work primarily on my defense. I think I caught a lot better and threw better. It's easier to catch the more advanced pitchers."

Cliburn has attended Hinds Junior College in Raymond, MS and Southern Mississippi University with an emphasis on business.

Catcher TOM DONOHUE served his apprenticeship in 1977 at Salt Lake City and now feels he is ready to make the jump to the major leagues.

"Last year was very helpful for me. It's the first time I went some place as the No. 1 catcher and caught virtually every day," said Donohue. "The experience was just what I needed."

Donohue appeared in 110 games, his career high for a season. He batted .273 with career highs of 15 home runs and 67 runs batted in.

"The whole idea is to get to the major leagues. I would like to make the club and work my way in slowly, getting experience as I go. I think I have a pretty good shot at it."

The 25-year-old native of Westbury, NY experienced no after effects of a broken right knuckle suffered early in 1976. That year he batted .326 in a season cut short to 37 games. He is one of the fastest running catchers in baseball.

Tom works in his father's funeral home in the winter and is only a year away from obtaining a license in mortuary science. He and wife Kerry welcomed first child Thomas Jr. last August.

Testimony for the talents and potential of BRIAN DOWNING can be found in the slightly yellowed scouting reports filed away at Anaheim Stadium.

"He has a bad elbow right now but still is worth going after in a trade," said the 1976 notes. "He's a hustler with some pop in his bat. A real battler."

The Angels finally landed the product of Anaheim's Magnolia High School during the most recent winter meetings in a multi-player deal with the Chicago White Sox. In combination with Terry Humphrey, Downing gives the Angels their best catching in many seasons. Their battle for No. 1 receiver should further improve the position.

"I didn't work out all winter to sit on the bench," said Brian with confidence. "I worked very hard on a Nautilus program and the arm is 100 per cent healthy."

In the parlance of big-time college athletics, Downing is a "walk-on." Unnoticed in the free agent drafts while playing at Magnolia and Cypress College, Downing got a tryout only because the late Bill Lentini, a Chicago scout, was a neighbor.

"Lentini managed the American Legion team I played on and gave me a chance. I was a late bloomer. I only played varsity my senior year in high school and was only a pinch-hitter at Cypress."

Downing worked his way up the White Sox system and made it to Chicago in 1973 for a less than auspicious debut. In his first game (May 31) he dove for a foul ball and injured his knee so severely he was on the disabled list until July. Things got better in August when, in his third major league at bat, he got his first hit — an inside the park home run at Detroit off Mickey Lolich.

A versatile performer, Downing also has played the outfield and third base. Good speed enabled him to steal 20 bases in 30 attempts in 1975-76. "I think I'm as fast as any catcher in baseball. If they give me the go ahead, I can steal some bases," said Brian.

Downing is anxious to please the Anaheim fans.

"I got pulled out of a game after making three errors here in my rookie year and I know the trade which brought me to the Angels wasn't particularly popular at the time. I just want the opportunity to show the fans what I can do."

For veteran RON FAIRLY the prospect of playing his 21st major league season is no different than when he broke in as a rookie in 1958.

"I really don't think you can get tired playing the game of baseball," opined Fairly. "Maybe a pitcher or a catcher can, but not guys in other positions.

"Mentally fatigued, yes, but not physically. At least I haven't. You don't exert that much physical energy.

"You have to look at it this way — there are an awful lot of businessmen and others sitting up in those stands who would love to be in your position."

In joining the Angels, Fairly completes a tour which included stops at Los Angeles, Montreal, St. Louis, Oakland and Toronto. He returns to southern California where the former Long Beach Jordan and USC All-American launched his career with the Dodgers.

"I'm a Californian (he resides in Calabasas Park) and I've always wanted to finish my active baseball career here," explained Fairly. "Peter Bavasi, President of the Toronto Blue Jays, told me if he had a chance, he'd get me back to the West Coast or with a team that had a chance to win a pennant. I think he did both in this case, and I thank him for it."

Fairly enjoyed one of the finest years of his bright career with Toronto, collecting a seasonal high 19 home runs to match 64 RBI and a batting average of .279.

The articulated redhead will celebrate birthday No. 40 July 12 and needs three more years (including the current season) to reach a plateau of playing in four decades.

Mickey Vernon (1939-60), Ted Williams (1939-60), Early Wynn (1939-63) and Minnie Minoso (1949-64, 1976) are the only other major leaguers to have achieved this feat.

The lone player to have performed for both Canadian major league entries, Fairly divided duties last year at first base, the outfield and as a designated hitter. He compiled a .300 average (200-60) in the latter category.

A veteran of four World Series (with a .300 average), the enthusiastic Fairly doesn't mince words in describing his feeling toward baseball:

"All my life, I've liked nothing better than playing baseball. In what other way could you make money having as much fun?" said Fairly.

A finance major during his collegiate days, Fairly holds a real estate license and deals in commercial and industrial properties during the winter.

Outfielder GIL FLORES emerged from anonymity in spring training last year and went on to make a significant contribution to the Angels' cause in 1977. His batting average of .278 was highest on the club among hitters performing in more than 100 games.

Flores had a brilliant spring campaign and didn't sulk when he found himself in Salt Lake City on Opening Day. Instead, he batted .333 in 20 games to win a May 5 ticket to the major leagues. He promptly manufactured a pair of 6-game hitting streaks and boasted a .333 average in his first month.

That Flores is even playing baseball is a testament to his courage. Once a promising boxer in native Puerto Rico, he lost that career and nearly his life in an automobile accident.

"I lost so much blood the doctors didn't know if I would live," said Flores in limited English. "The cuts around my eyes weren't good for a boxer and I had to wait a year before I could even play baseball."

Flores signed with the Baltimore Orioles and batted .302 as a rookie. After an injury-plagued 1972 campaign he was drafted by the Angels. He has overcome a broken jaw (June 4, 1975) and a fractured collarbone (1976) along the way.

Flores played his best ball in the Eastern Division ballparks. He batted .296 against East teams and .299 on the road.

One of the most anxious Angels to get to spring training was burly righthander DAVE FROST, acquired via trade from the Chicago White Sox during the winter meetings in Honolulu.

"I'm still excited about the trade but I was in limbo in January and February waiting to get to camp," said the Long Beach native. "This was the first time in three years I didn't play winter ball and I was really anxious."

Frost was a starter throughout his career in the Chicago organization but is aware he may become a long reliever with the Angels. "I would like to fit in as a starter but it looks like I would have to push someone out of the rotation. I'd like to think I have that chance but I would be happy to relieve to make the club. I started out as a reliever in college."

The 6-foot-6 Frost made four starts for the White Sox in 1977, working the final four Sundays of the season. His debut came Sept. 11 at Anaheim and he had a 4-2 lead when relieved in the seventh inning. Frost received no decision when the Angels rallied in the eighth to win. He got another chance the following Sunday and beat the Angels in Chicago, 7-3, going 7.2 innings in his longest major league outing.

Frost mixed basketball and baseball careers as an amateur. He had early success at Millikan High School and continued at Long Beach City College, where he was a member of the state championship basketball team in 1971 as a freshman. He moved on to Stanford University for three seasons, again starring in both sports before earning a degree in political science and signing with Chicago. Brother Dan Frost plays with the Athletes in Action basketball team.

DEAN CHANCE—ANGELS' CY YOUNG WINNER

Dean Chance, 23, became the Angels' first 20-game winner (20-9) in 1964 and the youngest player in history to win the Cy Young Award, emblematic of the outstanding pitcher in the major leagues. Chance had the lowest ERA in the majors (1.65) and pitched 11 shutouts—five by 1-0 scores, to tie a major league record.

The Angels are counting upon the bat of DANNY GOODWIN to mature in 1978 and give them another important weapon from the left side of home plate.

Goodwin split time between Salt Lake City and Anaheim last year. For the Gulls he batted .305 in 77 games, his third consecutive .300-plus performance in the farm system. With the Angels he batted .209 in 35 games as a designated or pinch hitter.

"Goodwin has shown us he can hit in the minors and now it's a question of adjusting to major league pitching," said manager Dave Garcia.

A mysterious shoulder injury launched Goodwin's professional career on a down beat. Drafted No. 1 in the nation by the Angels in the June, 1975 draft, Goodwin was idled almost a month between the conclusion of his Southern University season and his professional debut. He tried to impress people too soon and hurt his shoulder, which has yet to return to collegiate form.

Goodwin, who also was a No. 1 pick out of high school by the Chicago White Sox, collected his first major league home run on July 29 vs. Boston. It was a two-run shot off Ferguson Jenkins at Anaheim Stadium.

A year ago BOBBY GRICH found himself trapped in a sea of emotion. It was a fairy tale come true which rapidly dissipated into a nightmare. It was ecstasy turned into agony.

It began in 1976 when the talented infielder elected to play out his option with the Baltimore Orioles. Finishing the season by earning a fourth straight Gold Glove Award as the top fielding second baseman in the American League, Grich was plucked from the re-entry draft by the Angels and signed a lucrative multi-year contract, returning to his home in Long Beach, CA.

That was the good news. The bad news wasn't far behind.

On Valentine's Day, Grich, moving into a posh condominium overlooking picturesque Belmont Shore and Naples, lifted an air conditioning unit and immediately felt a pain in his back.

It was to cost him three weeks of spring training and ultimately half of the 1977 season. Following a lengthy period of traction, Grich opened the season at shortstop, a position he hadn't played in five years, thanks to the Mark Belanger era with the Orioles.

Grich homered in Seattle's Kingdome in the second game of the season to give Nolan Ryan the only run he needed to blank the expansion Mariners, 2-0. Two months later (June 8), with Ryan striking out 19 Blue Jays, it was Grich who belted a 13th-inning home run at Anaheim Stadium to give the Angels a 2-1 win against Toronto. It was his last at bat of the year.

On July 3, Dr. Michael Sukoff performed surgery to remove a herniated disc from Grich's back. Since then it has been a well-programmed period of rehabilitation for the popular Angel.

"Dr. Robert Kerlan placed me on a flexibility and strength improving program," said Grich. "I worked with Rams' trainer Gary Tuthill on Nautilus exercises and other programs. I feel I'll be back to 100 per cent," added Grich.

Following the trade of Jerry Remy to Boston, Grich will return to second base to team with youthful Rance Mulliniks at shortstop this year.

"Second base is easier than playing shortstop," Grich enthused. "I feel more comfortable at second because I know the position better. I feel my defensive contributions have more potential to be outstanding at second than at shortstop.

"The long lay-off won't hurt me. If anything, I'm just that much more anxious to play baseball and get back into the swing of things."

Called "As good as any and probably the best ballplayer in the A.L." by former manager Earl Weaver, Grich continued his solid hitting at the Big A last season, contributing a .304 average. He boasts a .307 lifetime average (202-62) at Anaheim.

"Normally, I set goals for myself prior to each season," remarked Grich, "but this year my main goal is just to stay healthy and be as durable as possible."

The "exciting new challenge of the American League" confronts TOM GRIFFIN, signed to a three-year Angels contract out of the re-entry draft. The 30-year-old righthander is a veteran of nine National League seasons with Houston and San Diego.

"The Angels have the makings of a real contender and I want to be part of that excitement," said Griffin. "And, of course, I have the greatest respect for Buzzie Bavasi."

Griffin didn't make the move north from San Diego to Anaheim alone. In addition to Bavasi, Player Development Director Mike Port and coach John McNamara also spent spring training 1977 as Padres, with whom Griffin was unhappy.

"I played out my option primarily because I didn't want to look back 10 years from now and regret missing an opportunity. I never knew where I stood in San Diego. I joined them late in 1976 and was 4-3 and pitched as well as anyone and then had a good spring but found myself in the bullpen."

Griffin's 1977 statistics were among the best of the Padres. He ranked No. 3 in innings pitched and was the only starter to allow less than one hit per inning. He was 6-9 with a 4.47 earned run average.

"I prefer starting and hope I get that opportunity with the Angels. I played with Terry Humphrey and Mike Barlow in Houston and am a neighbor of Ed Herrmann so I have a pretty good line on the Angels."

Griffin was the National League's "Rookie Pitcher of the Year" in 1969. A native of Los Angeles, he graduated from Grant High School in Van Nuys. He was signed by scouts Jim Wilson and Karl Kuehl and credits Wilson with being the key figure in his development.

Griffin originally was selected by the Chicago White Sox and Texas Rangers in the re-entry draft. When Chicago reached its allotment of signed players, a special drawing for negotiation rights to Griffin was held on Dec. 22 among three interested parties — Milwaukee, Toronto and California.

Versatile IKE HAMPTON completed his first full season in the major leagues in 1977 and enjoyed the best year statistically of his professional career. The back-up catcher and emergency infielder batted .295 and hit his first three major league home runs.

Hampton's first home run came at an opportune moment, a three-run pinch-hit blast which ruined the shutout bid of Mike Flanagan on Apr. 30 and forged a 3-3 tie in the seventh inning of a game at Baltimore.

The Camden, SC native got an opportunity to play regularly in the final week of the season and responded with two more circuit clouts, a go-ahead solo shot in John Caneira's 4-2 win at Milwaukee Sept. 28 and an insurance solo clout at Kansas City Oct. 1 in support of Mike Barlow's 4-1 victory.

Weighing his words carefully, PAUL HARTZELL discussed his role with the Angels this year.

"I'm completely prepared for another season like last year," said Hartzell. "Now I know what it takes to do three jobs — spot start, work as a regular member of the rotation and in short relief."

It was a difficult year at best for the Lehigh University graduate, who had enjoyed a meteoric rise to the major leagues only two years ago.

Hartzell completed the '76 campaign by winning seven of nine decisions as a starter after breaking into the majors with less than a full season of pro baseball to his credit, as a reliever.

However, last season he was shuffled back and forth between the rotation and the bullpen, starting 23 times (six complete games) and working in relief on 18 occasions.

His 8-12 record plus four "saves" resulted in a 3.57 ERA, 11th best in the American League.

"I really don't mind working in different capacities," offered Hartzell. "It puts me in a position to help the club at different times."

"The hardest adjustment to make is the mental adjustment from short reliever to starter. The short reliever is basically a failure if he gives up a hit. He probably hasn't done his job in that particular situation. Contrast that to the role of a starter, who obviously gives up a few hits and a couple of runs before his stint is over with and you get the picture."

"I think the only person last year who worked effectively in a similar situation was the Yankees' Dick Tidrow. He pitched in both capacities and really had an outstanding year."

Hartzell is quick to point out the help he received from manager Dave Garcia and coaches Marv Grissom and Bob Clear in making the transition.

Garcia was equally high in his praise of Hartzell.

"I look for Paul to be a key in our pitching success," said Garcia. "Remember, he pitched excellent baseball the last two months of the year."

The possessor of a Bachelor of Science Degree in Mechanical Engineering, Hartzell has continued his studies during the winter, working toward a Masters Degree in Administration.

Attending classes at U.C. Irvine, Hartzell studied Statistical Analysis, Organizational Theories and Models and Microeconomics last semester.

"Earning a Masters will afford me an avenue of escape from an engineering job," Hartzell related. "Upward mobility of an engineering job ceases when you become a head engineer. Without some form of administrative background you cannot continue."

AGE: 28, turns 29 on Aug. 4

RESIDES: Newport Beach, CA

HT.: 6-3 WT.: 190

BATS & THROWS: Right

MARRIED: Jan Payne, 11-12-77

ACQUIRED: From Houston's Memphis club with pitcher Mike Barlow in exchange for catcher Ed Herrmann, 6-6-76.

TERRY HUMPHREY finally got his wish in 1977 — to be a regular catcher. He appeared in 123 games, or almost as many as he played in parts of four seasons in the National League with Montreal. His strong right arm restored order to the basepaths, where enemy runners had been taking brazen liberties with previous Angels catchers.

A new challenge faces Humphrey in 1978 with the arrival of Brian Downing. Quite naturally, both foresee themselves as the No. 1 receiver.

"I know we both want to catch a lot," said Humphrey. "We both want to be No. 1 and we will just have to wait and see what happens in spring training. The competition should be beneficial to the club."

Humphrey's batting average suffered from fatigue in September, just as it did in 1976. He shows an Angels career mark of .254 in April thru August but only .157 in the final month. The presence of Downing should solve the problem of overwork.

The 27-year-old newlywed has proven to be durable as an Angel. He missed only the first week of May with a pulled hamstring and a week in August when hit on the elbow by a pitch. With Montreal he suffered a torn right thigh muscle (1972) and with Detroit missed most of 1975 after a shoulder separation.

"I've tried to stay in pretty good shape the last couple of winters. I play a lot of racquetball and golf. That and getting married kept me plenty busy this past winter."

Humphrey has emerged as one of the Angels veterans. Arriving in June of 1976 from the Houston organization, he now ranks No. 6 on the club in continuous service. He and Bobby Grich go back a long way as Little League teammates in Long Beach. Grich's parents Tony and Carrie were the manager and head scorekeeper. Humphrey's late father Ken and mother Clara were the coach and assistant scorekeeper.

RONNIE JACKSON

INF

AGE: 24, turns 25 on May 9
BORN: 5-9-53 in Birmingham, AL
RESIDES: Bessemer, AL
HT.: 6-0 WT.: 205
BATS & THROWS: Right
MARRIED: Marva Turner, 2-1-75
CHILDREN: Ronnie Damien
ACQUIRED: Angels' No. 2 selection in June, 1971 free agent draft.

Spring training 1978 has a familiar ring to RON JACKSON. Just as last year, he finds himself in a battle with Dave Chalk for the third base job. The only difference now is that he has a full season of major league experience under his belt.

The barrel chested 23-year-old Alabaman played in 106 games last year including 43 at first base, a new position which he played with ease. He ranks No. 5 on the club in continuous service, dating back to May of 1976.

Power is Jackson's biggest asset and he has displayed it in spurts. He hit eight home runs last year, the same figure he produced in 1976.

"If Ronnie plays every day, he will hit close to 20 home runs," said manager Dave Garcia. "He must improve with the glove but most importantly, simply quit putting too much pressure on himself."

Ron developed into an outstanding pinch hitter last year. He collected eight hits in 20 at bats for a .400 average and won consecutive games in late June.

"Those were the first two major league games my parents had ever seen me play. I flew them out from Alabama. It was quite different than when they saw me play in the minors for the first time. I made something like five errors in a game at El Paso."

On June 25, Jackson's bases-loaded single in the ninth inning beat Mike Marshall and Texas, 3-2. The next day in the first game of a doubleheader, he repeated the feat in the 11th inning for a 4-3 win.

Off the field Jackson is a winner, too. He won the Gene Lawing Memorial Award in El Paso in 1973 as the player who did the most for baseball by helping young players in the area. Last year he sponsored the Powerly Hills Angels of Bessemer, AL which included Jason Jackson, the youngest of 13 brothers and sisters.

Jackson was an outstanding high school football player and turned down numerous scholarship offers from the likes of Bear Bryant and John McKay. He played winter ball under new coach John McNamara at Licey in the Dominican Republic.

ACQUIRED: From Chicago White Sox with Brian Downing and Dave Frost in exchange for Bobby Bonds, Thad Bosley and Richard Dotson, 12-5-77.

Just as the batting average can be a deceiving measuring stick when evaluating the production of a power hitter vs. a singles man, so, too, can a pitcher's earned run average distort the picture. Righthander CHRIS KNAPP was saddled with a 4.81 ERA in 1977 but it was his 12-7 record that found its way into the team's standings.

"The White Sox had hitters, not fielders," said batterymate Brian Downing, who arrived with Knapp in the Bobby Bonds' trade. "Chris is a winner. With the exception of Nolan Ryan, he throws as hard as anyone in the American League."

Knapp displayed his talents to Anaheim fans twice in 1977, beating Nolan Ryan 3-2, in April, and Paul Hartzell, 6-2, in September. The latter performance, in the first game of a Sept. 11 doubleheader, was most memorable. The 24-year-old righthander pitched 6.2 innings of hitless ball until Rance Mulliniks lined a single to center field. Knapp settled for a four-hitter embellished by a career high 13 strikeouts — best by a Chicago pitcher last year. Ironically, his favorite victim that day was Bonds, whom he whiffed four times.

"I am happy about the trade and looking forward to playing regularly in Anaheim," said Knapp. "I knew the White Sox were looking for a power hitter and would use young pitching to obtain one. I had a good year which apparently made me attractive to the Angels."

Knapp made a surprising but brief trip to the minor leagues in August. "They told me they needed to bring up a lefthanded reliever and, because of the option situations on most of the other pitchers, I was the one who had to go even though I was the third winningest pitcher on the staff."

Adding further testimony to the deception of the ERA, Knapp compiled a sparkling 1.97 mark at Iowa yet failed to win a game in five starts.

Knapp boasts an outstanding amateur athletic career. He was Athlete of the Year (1971) at Lakeshore High School in St. Joseph, MI where he compiled a 20-1 prep record. In two years at Kalamazoo Valley Community College he was 10-1 and averaged 20 points a game for the school's basketball squad. He transferred to Central Michigan University and led the Mid-American Conference with 82 strikeouts and an ERA of 2.70. The following year he was Chicago's first selection in the June draft.

The 1976 season clearly illustrated Knapp's potential. His composite record at Knoxville, Iowa and Chicago was 17-6. On June 13 he pitched a seven-inning no-hitter against Evansville for Iowa.

Outfielder GIL KUBSKI is a realist when it comes to goals for the 1978 season.

"I want to have a good year on the Triple-A level then move up to the major leagues in 1979," said Kubski, who enjoyed a banner season in Double-A at El Paso last year. "I was pleased with my progress, particularly on defense. I've always been able to hit. I want to make myself into a good centerfielder."

Kubski played left field next to Ken Landreaux much of the season at El Paso, where he led the Texas League with 177 hits, 114 runs and 546 at bats.

The son of Kansas City scout Al Kubski, Gil sees an advantage to the fact his father no longer is a member of the Angels' organization.

"It might be easier for both of us now that he's with Kansas City. But anyone who really knows him is aware that he had nothing to do with me being drafted by the Angels."

Kubski graduated from Granada Hills High School and attended Cal State Northridge for two years. He followed Lyman Bostock by a year but roomed with Detroit's Jason Thompson.

"I had a lot to do with Thompson becoming an All-American," said Gil with a smile. "Jason was a pitcher but the coach put him in the lineup because he needed some lefthanded hitting when another player and I broke our arms. You know what happened then."

Gil has a hobby ideally suited for a baseball player — he's an avid fan of old movies.

As the first player in the history of the Angels' organization to win The Sporting News' "Minor League Player of the Year" award, KEN LANDREAUX quite naturally qualifies as a "can't miss" prospect. He has all the tools and, most importantly, is not about to rest on his laurels.

"Of course, I'm not pleased with my 1977 season," said the soft-spoken 23-year-old outfielder. "I feel I can do better. I'll never be satisfied."

Landreaux displayed every facet of his game last year. His batting average was imposing — .354 at El Paso in the Texas League and .359 at Salt Lake City in the Pacific Coast League. He hit with power — a total of 27 home runs and 116 runs batted in. He ran well — a total of 20 stolen bases and 124 runs scored. His defensive skills, unmeasurable statistically, surfaced in his major league debut.

On Sept. 11 in Anaheim vs. the Chicago White Sox, centerfielder Landreaux narrowly missed entering the American League record book. He completed two double plays by throwing out base runners trying to advance to third and got a third assist on a man cut down at the plate.

Landreaux's sensational 1977 campaign erased the sting of a disappointing 1976 season. Ken was the Angels' No. 1 draft selection in June off the Arizona State University campus, where he batted .413 and led the Sun Devils into the College World Series. Immediately upon signing he reported to El Paso and almost as rapidly sprained his right ankle. After a stint on the disabled list he settled for a .220 batting average.

A brilliant All-Star season at El Paso last year put CARNEY LANSFORD's name in the minds of Angels' executives. The San Jose, CA native batted .332 for the Diablos with 18 home runs and 94 runs batted in to outshine all Texas League third basemen. He also had a 22-game hitting streak.

Lansford has improved rapidly and with each step up the organizational ladder. He batted .222 in the rookie league in 1975 and .287 in Class A in 1976. At age 21, he figures to be the regular third baseman at Salt Lake City in 1978.

A baseball, football and basketball star at Adrian Wilcox High in San Jose, Lansford opted for baseball when drafted by the Angels on the third round in June of 1975. He played this past winter in Caracas in the Venezuelan League.

Lansford boasts an interesting heritage. He is a fourth cousin of country western star Tex Ritter and is a descendant of circumnavigator Sir Francis Drake.

Managers and coaches of many sports will tell you starting lineups are overrated. What counts is who you have in there at the finish when the outcome is decided.

Using that gauge will tell you something about the importance of DAVE LA ROCHE to the Angels' bullpen. He recorded the final out of the game in 39 of his 46 appearances.

"I've always enjoyed the pressure of being a relief pitcher," said LaRoche, brought back to the Angels in May via trade from Cleveland. "I enjoy going into a game and meeting the challenge. I guess you have to be somewhat cocky about it. Perhaps confident is a better word."

The Angels' bullpen enjoyed a renaissance in 1977 and it doesn't take an Inspector Clouseau or Barnaby Jones to locate the reason. Evidence is scattered throughout the record books, pointing the finger at LaRoche.

When LaRoche arrived from Cleveland on May 11, the Angels' bullpen had a composite 0-6 record with five saves and an earned run average of 3.90. With LaRoche present the slate read 16-15 with 21 saves and an ERA of 3.33. The totals of 16 victories and 26 saves were the club's best marks since 1971.

Individually, LaRoche broke his own club record for southpaws with 13 saves (17 overall).

"It was great coming home to the Angels," said the West Torrance High School product. "I still felt a lot of loyalty to the organization. I came up through this system and have a lot of my family in the area."

LaRoche virtually bracketed the Harry Dalton regime in Anaheim. He was traded to Minnesota for shortstop Leo Cardenas in Dalton's first move late in 1971 and was one of the last players acquired in a Dalton deal. Between Minnesota and Cleveland he spent two years with the Chicago Cubs.

An outfielder when originally signed, LaRoche was converted into a pitcher by then Quad Cities manager Ford Koenig in an emergency situation. When LaRoche notched three scoreless innings, Koenig assigned him a seat in the bullpen.

LaRoche has been a member of the American League All-Star team the past two years. He did not get into the 1976 contest but hurled a scoreless inning last year. In 1976 he set a Cleveland record with 21 saves and tied another mark by finishing 43 games. He has a career total of 87 saves.

DYAR MILLER proved the perfect complement to Dave LaRoche last year in molding the Angels' bullpen into its best form since 1971. The hard-throwing righthander was acquired from Baltimore on the eve of the June trading deadline and made an auspicious debut, winning his first three performances.

Only hours after deplaning from Minneapolis airport on June 14, Miller pitched 2.1 scoreless innings against the Twins to earn credit for a 12-9 win. Three days later he was summoned in the eighth inning at Milwaukee and won a 7-5 contest which covered 10 innings. On June 23 he went five innings to wrap up a 10-6 win at Chicago.

Miller ended up 4-4 as an Angel with four saves. His earned run average of 3.02 was the best in the bullpen. At age 31, he feels he still has plenty of velocity left in his arm.

"I'm sure I haven't thrown half as many pitches as Nolan Ryan," said Miller. "I was signed as a catcher and didn't start pitching until 1968. I need to pitch. Earl Weaver lost confidence in me in Baltimore so they got rid of me. I'm happy to be with the Angels because there's too much talent to keep us down in the standings."

The farmer from Indiana led the Orioles with 49 appearances in 1976. In less than two full years in Baltimore he had a combined record of 8-7 with 15 saves.

Anaheim Stadium was Dyar's favorite ballpark last year. In 41.1 innings he allowed only six earned runs for a nifty 1.31 ERA.

RICHARD ALAN MILLER

OF

AGE: 29, turns 30 on Apr. 19

BORN: 4-19-48 in Grand Rapids, MI

RESIDES: Winter Haven, FL

HT.: 6-0 WT.: 185

BATS & THROWS: Left

MARRIED: Janet Marie Fisk, 10-27-73

ACQUIRED: Selected in re-entry draft and signed, 12-8-77.

The opportunity to play every day brought outfielder RICK MILLER to the Angels after seven years in Boston characterized by outstanding defensive play and timely reserve duty.

"I'm excited about becoming an Angel," said the 28-year-old Miller, who played out his option with the Red Sox and signed as part of the Don Aase — Jerry Remy trade. "I see a lot of opportunity for me and a good team that will battle Kansas City and Texas down to the wire. I'm looking forward to the change and the long move from home."

Trapped behind Carl Yastrzemski, Fred Lynn, Jim Rice and Dwight Evans in the Boston outfield, Miller took advantage of the "freedom" clause in the players' agreement to find new pastures to roam. The Angels were an unlikely landing spot.

"I decided to wait and see what the big name outfielders did — Lyman Bostock, Richie Zisk, Larry Hisle and Oscar Gamble. I didn't want to go anywhere they did. When Bostock signed with the Angels I scratched them off my list. But when they traded Bobby Bonds it changed the picture and we were negotiating the very next day.

"I would prefer to play centerfield because there is more room to cover and no foul lines to worry about. But I've played all three positions and am just looking forward to playing in Anaheim Stadium, away from the hard walls at Fenway Park."

A broken left thumb suffered when struck by Seattle's John Montague put Miller on the disabled list virtually all of May and helped to restrict him to 86 games. In 1976 he had been selected Boston's "Comeback Player of the Year" for compiling a .283 batting average.

Miller was a three-sport star at Union High School in Grand Rapids, MI and was an All-America selection at Michigan State in 1969 when he won the Big Ten batting title. He was a second round draft pick by Boston that year. Wife Janet is the sister of Boston catcher Carlton Fisk.

BALOR LILBON MOORE

LHP

AGE: 27

BORN: 1-25-51 in Smithville, TX

RESIDES: Pasadena, TX

HT.: 6-2 WT.: 185

MARRIED: Paula Aucoin, 2-1-74

ACQUIRED: Purchased from Montreal's Memphis club, 6-16-75.

BALOR MOORE carries a double burden in his battle to return to prominence on a major league pitching staff. The 27-year-old southpaw is trying to make the conversion from starter to reliever while overcoming the effects of arm trouble and subsequent surgery.

"I'd always been a starter with Montreal but maybe the bullpen will give me a new lease on life," said Moore, who was called up in September last year after posting a combined 6-4 record for Salinas and Salt Lake City. "Throwing every day may help give me more consistency."

Bone chips were removed and a nerve was rerouted in Balor's left elbow on Aug. 29, 1975. He came back to pitch 141 innings in a starting role in 1976 at El Paso and then made 52 appearances for 110 innings last year, primarily out of the bullpen.

Moore was called a lefthanded Nolan Ryan early in his career. Both are from small towns in Texas. Both enjoy hunting and cattle ranching. And both lived by their fast balls. Moore was the first player selected in the free agent draft by the expansion Expos in 1969 and was in the major leagues at age 19. Arm troubles have cost him "about 10 per cent" of his velocity.

In 1972 Moore averaged 9.79 strikeouts per outing during a 9-9 campaign. Twice he notched 13 in a game and also pitched back-to-back shutouts. On Nov. 25, 1973 he pitched the first nine-inning perfect game in Puerto Rican League history.

Young RANCE MULLINIKS proved to be the silver lining in the dark cloud of injuries which hovered over the Angels in 1977. Forced into the lineup by the back surgery performed on Bobby Grich, Mulliniks gave the Angels their best shortstop play since the early days of Jim Fregosi.

Mulliniks was called up from Salt Lake City on June 14 and became the regular shortstop on June 23. After a nervous 3-for-25 beginning at the plate, he exploded on the Fourth of July with his first home run in a 3-for-3 day and was on his way to a season's mark of .269.

"At no time did I think I was overmatched at the plate," said Rance, only 22. "They don't throw any harder and their breaking pitches aren't any better in the majors than the minors. But the control is and for awhile they were getting me out with pitches I was hitting at Salt Lake City . . . I don't want to be regarded as just a defensive shortstop. I want to be known as a good overall player."

At Salt Lake, Mulliniks was leading the Gulls with 11 home runs and 51 runs batted in while batting .309. In 1976 he was the Texas League's All-Star shortstop while hitting .315, a significant improvement over his statistics at the rookie and Class-A levels.

"I discovered a fault in my swing. I was dropping my hands. After correcting that fault, I became more comfortable at the plate and my hitting improved. Bob Clear also helped me in terms of power by moving me closer to home plate."

Although an injury opened the door for Rance, he was not immune to pain. He came out a decided loser in a collision with Kansas City's John Mayberry on June 27 and missed one week with a bruised thigh. He missed four games in early August with a sore shoulder and then sat out the final two weeks of the campaign when tendinitis flared up in the index finger of his left hand, a lingering souvenir of a broken left thumb suffered in 1976.

This is a "do or die" season for MIKE OVERY, the hard-throwing relief specialist from Clinton, IL. Overy spent the entire 1977 campaign at Salt Lake City and was disappointed he didn't get a call to Anaheim, at least in September.

"I thought I had a pretty good year at Salt Lake," said Overy, who had a brief major league trial in 1976. "I began the year as a starter and was 3-2 but mentally I couldn't prepare myself for that role. I've been a reliever my entire professional career and that's the job I will be expected to do in the major leagues.

"I worked out very hard this winter and am in the best shape of my life. I look at this spring as a fresh start because none of the powers that be except coach Bob Clear have ever seen me pitch."

Overy compiled a 7-5 record with eight saves at Salt Lake. He maintained his reputation as a strikeout pitcher by running his career total to 442 "K's" in 408 innings but also walked 87 to bring that total to 256.

Side wheeling lefthander LUIS QUINTANA enjoyed a change of scenery in 1977 as he came back from 1976 injury problems to earn another berth on the Angels' major league roster.

Quintana was loaned to Syracuse of the International League midway through last year. He made 10 starts and registered three complete games, his first since 1972 when he was in the San Francisco Giants' organization. The Giants released Quintana and the Angels signed him as a free agent on Jan. 13, 1974.

Quintana picked up two quick victories for the Angels in 1974. On July 31 he earned a 14-4 decision over Chicago and nine days later beat the Sox in Chicago, 6-4. He was selected by Atlanta in the minor league draft of December, 1975 but returned in June of 1976 before pitching a single inning.

FLOYD KINNARD RAYFORD

INF-C

AGE: 20, turns 21 on July 27

BORN: 7-27-57 in Memphis, TN

RESIDES: Los Angeles, CA

HT.: 5-10 WT.: 195

BATS & THROWS: Right

ACQUIRED: Selected in June, 1975 free agent draft.

Versatile FLOYD RAYFORD can play every position on the diamond and carries a bat which should soon win him a berth in the major leagues. The 20-year-old product of Manual Arts High School in Los Angeles enjoyed his best professional season in 1977, batting .297 at El Paso in 79 games after a promotion from Salinas.

"He has a quick major league bat," said Bob Rodgers, who managed the El Paso club last year. "He played every infield position for me as well as the outfield. And he came up as a catcher. But it's his bat that is his biggest asset and will get him to the majors."

Built along the curved lines of Roy Campanella, Rayford must fight a weight problem to maintain his surprising quickness. He has stolen 54 bases in his brief pro career and scampers about in the infield.

A thumbnail appraisal of JOE RUDI would probably read something as follows: unpretentious; emotionally stable; a diligent worker; one of baseball's most consistent performers; one of the game's best clutch hitters; a millionaire by virtue of the 1976 re-entry draft; a .300-plus hitter in World Series and All-Star competition and one helluva player to have on a ball club.

While he may not have the charisma of a Reggie Jackson or a Pete Rose, Rudi possesses the quiet type of leadership integral to any successful organization.

The 1977 Angels are a case in point. With Rudi in the line-up through late June, the Angels were two games above .500 and only a pair of games behind the division leader in the games lost column.

Unfortunately, Texas' Nelson Briles uncorked a wild fast ball which was headed in the vicinity of Rudi's skull in the second game of a June 26 doubleheader at the Big A (swept by California). Rudi threw up his right hand as a protective measure, caught the brunt of the pitch on his right wrist and writhed in pain while lying on the ground at home plate.

He didn't play another game for California. Last September 2, Rudi underwent a 1½ hour operation by Dr. Julio Taleisnik for the removal of a bone fragment and cleansing of the wrist joint. The operation was termed successful.

Rudi's 11-year major league career has established a rather unusual pattern. He has achieved one great year followed by a lesser one — caused mostly by injuries.

If the past is any criteria, 1978 figures to be a banner season for Rudi.

A devotee of citizens band radio (his handle is "Ball Four"), Rudi is studying for a ham radio operator's license.

He has also made a habit of studying opposing pitchers.

"Let me tell you something about hitting," said Rudi. "When you're going good it doesn't make any difference who the pitcher is, whether it's a night game or a day game, or where the ball park is located. I don't take a lot of theories up to the plate with me. I look for what I think is a good pitch and then I swing at it. If there is more to hitting than that, I don't know about it."

It was this type of philosophy that enabled Rudi to earn American League "Player of the Week" honors during the first week of action last year. He hit .333 (18-6), collected three doubles, two home runs (one a grand-slam) and drove in nine runs.

A three-time Gold Glove winner, Rudi enjoyed another phenomenal week at the plate from June 12 thru 18. He hit .462 (26-12), added four doubles, four home runs, drove in 11 runs and scored 10 times.

The consistency is evidenced in Rudi's career average of .275. Prior to last season's injury, he had averaged 19 home runs and 89 RBI for a three-year period.

Rudi led the A.L. in 1977 in ratio of RBI per at bats. He had 53 RBI in 242 at bats or one every 4.57 trips to the plate.

"I really didn't become a successful major league hitter until Charlie Lau (a hitting coach for the Oakland A's and now Kansas City) changed me around," added Rudi. "He got me into a more compact stance. I also stopped trying to pull everything and learned to go with the pitch."

Perhaps the best description of the ease with which Rudi blends into a ball club was offered by former manager Norm Sherry when he said: "My feeling is that anybody would do a good job managing Joe Rudi."

in exchange for Jim Fregosi, 12-10-71.

In assessing a career which is replete with accomplishments far beyond his contemporaries, NOLAN RYAN, baseball's hardest throwing pitcher (he was clocked at 100.9 mph on Aug. 20, 1974), looked toward the future and listed the following career objectives: a fifth no-hitter, another pair of 20-or-more victory seasons and a career total of 3,000-or-more strikeouts.

"He's the only guy in the game capable of throwing a no-hitter every time out," enthused former teammate Bobby Bonds.

Ryan's record offers substantial proof. Ryan and Sandy Koufax own four no-hitters, more than any other pitchers in baseball history. Complementing Ryan's no-hitters are five one-hitters, 11 two-hitters and 22 three-hitters.

Voted by opposing players as "American League Pitcher of the Year" last season in a poll conducted by The Sporting News, Ryan enjoyed a spectacular season. He struck out 341 batters, the fifth time in his career that he has exceeded the 300 mark; he won 19 games, led the league with 22 complete games and finished third in the ERA derby with a 2.77 mark.

Ryan would have recorded a third 20-win season had it not been for a sore arm which plagued him the final month and eventually cost him several starts. He failed in three attempts at win No. 20, coming up short when his arm simply wasn't able to stand the strain.

"The mental strain of pitching close games all year is as tough as the physical part," said Ryan. "When I go home I'm as tired mentally as I am physically."

The soft spoken native of Refugio, Texas, has toyed with the idea of altering his pitching style.

"I could make the transition easily," offered Ryan, "by reducing my speed and hopefully prolonging my career."

"I wouldn't be as fine or as over-powering. I'd be more concerned about hitting spots more regularly. I feel I could take something off and be just as successful."

Ryan overcame major surgery two years ago for the removal of bone chips from his right elbow to pitch 284 innings in 1976 and raise the count to 299 innings pitched last year.

He struck out 10-or-more batters in a game 20 times in 1977 to run his career total to 104 10-plus strikeout games — a major league record.

He also registered 19 strikeouts against Toronto (June 8), marking the fourth time he has reached that lofty plateau.

With a lifetime total of 2,426 strikeouts, Ryan ranks 15th on the all-time list. Only Walter Johnson (3,508) and Bob Gibson (3,117) have surpassed the 3,000 strikeout standard.

Ryan was extremely effective against division winner Kansas City, winning three of four decisions (he's 17-7 lifetime vs. Royals) and New York, taking two of three verdicts from the World Champs.

He has been equally successful pitching at the Big A where he's 65-45 with a 2.24 ERA lifetime (opposed to 47-49 and a 3.70 ERA on the road).

Writer Bill Libby, who authored a book on Ryan last year entitled "The Other Game," offers an insight of Nolan's personality. Says Libby: "He has immense pride, he's intense and he worries a lot. He reached a point, following that arm injury and surgery where now he suspects his future career is limited . . . and nothing that happens will surprise him."

In referring to "The Other Game," Ryan commented, "The real game, I think, is life and living it the best we can."

ACQUIRED: Claimed on waivers from Kansas City Royals, 7-14-76.

It depends on which battery of statistics one considers when evaluating the performance of TONY SOLAITA in 1977. On the surface, it appears the Samoan strongman had a disappointing year despite playing in a career high 116 games.

The most obvious figures are a .241 batting average, 14 home runs and 53 runs batted in. More impressive are these numbers: .347 and 1 per 6.11. The first is his on-base percentage, best on the club. The latter is his RBI per at bat count, third best behind Joe Rudi and Bobby Bonds.

"When you consider how many at bats he had, his statistics were pretty good," said manager Dave Garcia. "He had a sub-par year defensively but he still is a valuable member of this ball club."

Solaita proved particularly effective in Anaheim and as a pinch-hitter. His Big-A batting average was .310 and his performance off the bench was .381 including two pinch home runs. His career pinch-hit batting average is .302.

One of the strongest men in baseball, Solaita is the only one ever to hit three home runs in a game at Anaheim. He did it for the Kansas City Royals on Sept. 7, 1975. All three shots went to centerfield.

"I don't need to pull the ball. In fact, when I start trying to pull is when I start getting in trouble and doing things like pulling my head out too soon."

Solaita was hampered early last year by an injury to the ring finger on his right hand. "It was the first time in my career that I was hurt so badly I couldn't play. It gave me a complex, sitting on the bench not being able to do anything. I had never been through anything like it."

ACQUIRED: Angels' No. 1 selection in June, 1971 free agent draft.

In four full major league seasons FRANK TANANA, age 24, has established himself as the top lefthander in the American League.

"I haven't seen Tom Seaver in a few years, but Tanana has to be the best pitcher in baseball," offered Whitey Herzog.

Alex Grammas concurs. "Tanana is the best pitcher, not only in the American League, but in the National League, too."

Frank Tanana has another way of putting it. "When people talk about the No. 1 pitcher in baseball, I want Frank Tanana's name to come to mind first."

Never bashful, always articulate and exuding confidence, other samples of Tananaisms include:

"Life is too short to be serious."

"One run is enough. That's all I need."

"People ask me about my control. Hell, I always had it."

This is one facet of the Tanana image which in itself is a paradox.

For those who really know Tanana, there's the other personality. The side which the public doesn't hear or read about but which Tanana's agent Tony Attanasio describes so well:

"The biggest thing you can say outside of Frank the baseball player is that he does care. The guy truly cares about people. He stops to talk to guys in wheelchairs. He signs autographs.

"He doesn't want the public to know what he has done beneficially for other people. He doesn't want to toot his own horn."

To illustrate Attanasio's point, last year Tanana privately pledged $10 for each strikeout he might post during the season to youngsters at Children's Hospital in Orange County. He wound up with 205 and promptly mailed the facility a check for $2,050.

"As soon as people understand your personality," stated Tanana, "they don't take to heart what you say. They just say, 'Oh, that's Tanana speaking. Getting a little carried away.' And I think the fan likes somebody he can relate to, somebody who's not too high and mighty. We're no different from everybody else. We just happen to play baseball."

For "playing baseball" Tanana signed a five-year multi-million dollar contract with California last year.

"I play the game because I love it and want to be the best at it. Sure, I make a lot of money, but that's only because they are passing it around," Tanana emphasized.

He enjoyed the best start of his brief career in '77, tossing five shutouts en route to winning 10 of his first 12 decisions (in both defeats the Angels were shutout) while posting a 1.84 ERA.

A short while later, he pitched his 14th consecutive complete game to set an Angels record.

A potential 30-game winner — certainly a cinch to win 20, an odds-on favorite to start the All-Star Game for the A.L. and one of the leading candidates for the Cy Young Award, Tanana was stopped short on all counts by an inflamed triceps tendon in his left arm. The complete game streak, working every fourth day, had taken its toll.

Tanana was named to the All-Star squad, but missed the game with a near lifeless arm which was to bother him for seven weeks before he finally called it a season on September 9.

Despite the abbreviated campaign, he finished with a 15-9 record, 20 complete games and led the A.L. with a 2.54 ERA and seven shutouts.

Both national wire services and The Sporting News named Tanana as the outstanding lefthander in the A.L.

"I've done a lot of thinking," confessed Tanana. "The way I was going about it (i.e., happy-go-lucky remarks) wasn't what I wanted. From now on I'll just talk baseball.

"It's no big to-do. Sometimes people just change."

John McNamara's first move as an Angels coach was to urge Executive Vice President E.J. Bavasi to invite CARLOS PEREZ to spring training. McNamara managed Perez at Licey in the Dominican Republic this winter and liked what he saw of the hard-throwing righthander, who was selected the league's MVP.

Perez has made all the stops in the Angels' farm system. Signed in 1975 as a free agent, he promptly gained attention by posting a 9-3 record at Idaho Falls including a league high seven complete games. He finished that season at Quad Cities before enjoying a fine 13-8 season in 1976 at Salinas.

In 1977 Perez worked exclusively as a reliever and fashioned a combined 5-1 record with four saves at El Paso and Salt Lake City.

GARY DOUGLAS ROSS

RHP

AGE: 30. BORN: 9-16-47 in McKeesport, PA. RESIDES: Carlsbad, CA. HT.: 6-0. WT.: 190. BATS & THROWS: Right. MARRIED: Linda Orman, 11-16-67. CHILDREN: Gary, Jr., Corey. ACQUIRED: From San Diego Padres' Hawaii club in exchange for Bob Valentine and Rudy Meoli, 9-17-75.

The uncertainty over nagging arm injuries is a thing of the past for GARY ROSS, who in turn must now face the challenge of recuperation from arm surgery. On July 20, 1977 physicians removed bone chips and repaired a torn tendon in the more important elbow of the 30-year-old righthander.

"The arm had been bothering me for the past three years. It took them that long to figure out what was wrong. The bone chips were the least of the problem and the doctors have told me it will take nine months to one year to fully recover."

Ross' problems date back to 1974 when he spent much of the season on the disabled list as a member of the San Diego Padres' organization. He was the top winner (16-8) in the Pacific Coast League in 1975 and attracted the attention of the Angels, for whom he compiled an earned run average of 3.00 in 225 innings in 1976. But the pain flared last spring and he saw only limited action before finally going on the disabled list July 12.

"I feel it's only a matter of time before the arm comes around again. The full extension has been slow coming back but I'm not too worried about that. The pain is gone."

Ross' two victories in 1977 came back-to-back in late May. He pitched six shutout innings and allowed only three hits in beating Minnesota 5-1 on May 21. His next outing was a 4-1 victory at Toronto in which he allowed only one run and six hits in seven-plus innings.

Dame fortune has avoided the McKeesport, PA native in recent years. Despite the 10th best ERA in the American League in 1976 he had an 8-16 record. In his Angels' debut in 1975 his new club was no-hit by a quartet of Oakland A's hurlers. He had pondered retirement that spring when caught up in a San Diego youth movement.

"That's all history and I'd like to forget about it."

Gary spent the winter as a lefthanded manager of his liquor store.

AGE: 19, turns 20 on June 20. BORN: 6-20-58 in South Bend, IN. RESIDES: Hato Rey, Puerto Rico. HT.: 5-11. WT.: 150. BATS & THROWS: Right. ACQUIRED: Signed as a free agent, 11-23-75.

Next to Ken Landreaux, many baseball scouts rated infielder DICKIE THON the best player in the Pacific Coast League in 1977. Only a few years removed from the American Legion program in Puerto Rico, 19-year-old Thon is a longshot bet to make the major league roster as a utility infielder.

Thon was signed by scout Red Smith after a versatile high school career which included four years of baseball, basketball, track and volleyball. Thon's father Fred played and managed for 12 years in the Puerto Rican Winter League.

LANDREAUX NAMED MINOR LEAGUE PLAYER OF THE YEAR

Outfielder Ken Landreaux, the Angels' No. 1 selection in the summer draft of 1976, became the first player in the organization's history to be selected "Minor League Player of the Year."

Landreaux hit .354 in 57 games at El Paso and improved his average to .359 in 62 games with Salt Lake City before earning a promotion to the Angels last summer.

His combined minor league totals included 33 doubles, 8 triples, 27 home runs, 124 runs scored, 116 RBI and 20 stolen bases.

Angels minor league teams amassed a 342-275 (.554) record, marking the fourth consecutive year California's system has produced winning records.

El Paso, under the guidance of Bob Rodgers, won both halves of the west division in the Texas League while Moose Stubing's Salinas team was a first-half winner in the California League.

Individually, lefthander Ralph Botting (Salinas); Landreaux (El Paso); outfielder Bob Jones (Salt Lake City); designated hitter Butch Alberts (Salt Lake City) and third baseman Carney Lansford (El Paso) each earned the TOPPS Chewing Gum Company's "Minor League Players of the Month" awards in their respective leagues.

For DICK ENBERG, the 1978 season marks his 10th and final year as an Angels broadcaster. Enberg signed a multi-year contract with NBC television last fall which will give him an opportunity to cover all facets of sports for the network.

He received a Masters and a Doctorate in Health Science from Indiana University after graduating from Central Michigan University.

Enberg served as the voice of the Los Angeles Rams for 12 years, was a three-time winner of the California Sportscenter of the Year award and in 1976 was selected Sportscenter of the Year by Sports Illustrated.

In addition, Enberg handled play-by-play for the AFC Championship Game in Denver last fall; worked a pair of American League Championship Series games with Don Drysdale and has handled the announcing chores for a pair of World Heavyweight Championship boxing matches featuring Ali vs. Dunn and Ali vs. Shavers.

Starting his sixth year as an Angels broadcaster, DON DRYSDALE has become almost as adept behind the mike as he was while pitching for the Brooklyn/Los Angeles Dodgers.

Drysdale's easy to listen to style of announcing flavored with timely expertise drawn from his own baseball experiences have made him a favorite with southern California listening audiences. He launched his broadcasting career with Montreal as a television commentator in 1970-71, before moving to Texas to handle the Rangers' play-by-play commentary in 1972.

Last winter Drysdale served as one of the TV announcers for World Championship Tennis on the Hughes Sports Network. He also has handled A.L. Championship Series games with Dick Enberg for NBC-TV.

Drysdale compiled a 209-167 record with a 2.95 ERA during 14 major league seasons. A nine-time member of the National League All-Star team and a participant in five World Series, he set a major league record by tossing six straight shutouts and a total of 58-2/3 scoreless innings in 1968.

At age 27, AL WISK has enjoyed a rapid rise to the top in the broadcasting business. Beginning his second season as an Angels commentator, Wisk recently succeeded Dick Enberg in becoming the "Voice of the Los Angeles Rams."

A graduate of the University of Michigan, Wisk's previous experience included stops at KRLD in Dallas, Texas, handling play-by-play for the Dallas Cowboys and at KCMO in Kansas City where he served in a similar capacity for the Kansas City Chiefs.

The Writers . . .

A former president of the Los Angeles-Anaheim Chapter of the BBWAA, DICK MILLER, correspondent for the Los Angeles Herald Examiner, is starting his 15th season covering baseball.

Miller attended Santa Monica City College (he was President of the Associated Mens Students at SMCC) and launched his writing career with the Santa Monica Evening Outlook.

With the Herald Examiner since 1968, Miller won a Hearst National Writing Contest. In addition to covering the Angels, he writes a column for the paper and covers the University of Southern California.

ROSS NEWHAN, the senior member of the Angels' writing corps, has covered the team for parts of each season since the inception of the Angels in 1961.

Newhan graduated from Long Beach State with a Bachelor of Arts in History. He spent eight years with the Long Beach Independent and for the past 10 years has been a member of the Los Angeles Times sports department.

He has served as President of the Los Angeles-Anaheim Chapter of BBWAA on two occasions and is currently a member on the national Board of Directors for the BBWAA.

During his tenure with Long Beach, Newhan won an award for the Associated Press Sports Story of the Year, covering Sandy Koufax's exploits in the final game of the 1965 World Series between the Los Angeles Dodgers and Minnesota Twins.

The newest member on the Angels beat is SCOTT OSTLER of the Los Angeles Times.

A local product from Mark Keppel High School in Alhambra, Ostler attended Pepperdine College for two years before finishing his schooling at Brigham Young University, where he received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Journalism.

He was the recipient of a Helms Athletic Foundation Scholarship in Journalism.

Ostler launched his writing career with the Long Beach Independent, serving as sports editor for six years. He moved to the Long Beach Independent in 1977 before transferring to the Times six months ago.

Before joining the Long Beach Independent a year ago, TRACY RINGOLSBY spent six years with United Press International.

Starting his second season with the Angels, Ringolsby attended Colorado State and the University of Wyoming. He launched his writing career with the UPI bureau in Cheyenne, Wy.

Ringolsby later served as state news editor and sports writer for UPI in Denver and ultimately as Midland Sports Editor for the UPI bureau in Kansas City.

During his career he has covered the Olympics in Montreal; World Championship Figure Skating; the NFL Play-Offs; the NBA Play-Offs and the A.L. Championship Series.

A graduate of the University of the Pacific (Stockton), JOHN STELLMAN served his journalistic apprenticeship with the Imperial Valley Post Press; the Orange Daily News; Indio Daily News and the Anaheim Bulletin, with two years sandwiched between for military duty in the Naval Reserves.

Stellman joined The Register in September, 1969 and is starting his ninth year of covering Angels baseball.

A former secretary of the L.A.-Anaheim Chapter of BBWAA, Stellman is one of the official scorers for Angels baseball.

ANAHEIM STADIUM

DESIGN—Three-level structure
SEATING CAPACITY—43,250
PARKING FACILITIES—
12,000 automobiles
STADIUM AREA—140 acres

FOUL LINES—333 feet
BULLPENS—362 feet
LEFT AND RIGHT FIELDS—370 feet
POWER ALLEYS—386 feet
CENTER FIELD—404 feet

Anaheim Stadium was built with "Convenience, Comfort and Courtesy" in mind. Narrow foul territory areas and quickly rising decks keep spectators on top of the action. Gradually inclined ramps and escalators, wide aisles and seats and helpful ushers make entrance and egress as uncomplicated as possible.

Three surrounding freeways, 26 entrance lanes from three streets and 28 exit lanes and wide adjacent surface streets make Anaheim Stadium one of the most accessible in baseball. Completion of the Orange "57" Freeway has made a significant improvement as did the Santa Ana Freeway overpass on State College Boulevard. Which was completed in 1977.

The stadium is owned by the city of Anaheim with the Angels holding the primary lease of 35 years. It was completed in 1966 by the Del W. Webb Company after an Aug. 31, 1964 groundbreaking at a cost of $24 million, including the giant A-frame scoreboard which rises 230 feet. It is the source of the stadium's nickname—"the Big-A."

For the statistically minded, there are 42,000 cubic yards of concrete; 7,000,000 pounds of reinforcing steel; 8,000,000 pounds of structural steel; 500,000 nuts and bolts; and 1,900 lights in the stadium, which covers 782,000 square feet. The architect was Nobel Herzberg.

GROUND RULES—Foul poles and attached screen are in fair territory. Fly ball striking either is home run.

OUT OF PLAY—On ball entering dugout:

1. pitched ball is one base
2. thrown ball is two bases (ball going in through or over all television and photography booths is considered the same as dugout).

On ball striking guy wires supporting back stop:

1. batted ball is dead
2. pitched ball is one base
3. thrown ball is two bases

On ball lodged in outfield fence:

1. dead ball, two bases
